Weekly wrap-up

National healthcare, pharmaceutical company selects Indianapolis for new corporate headquarters

Oct. 10, 2007- Governor Mitch Daniels joined Arcadia HealthCare chief executive Marvin Richardson to announce the company's plans to relocate its national headquarters to Indianapolis, creating more than 400 new jobs by 2010.

The provider of home healthcare and products will invest more than $3 million to relocate its suburban Detroit headquarters to Indianapolis' north side and will begin hiring managers, pharmacists, pharmacy technicians and sales staff later this year.

"New jobs in Indiana are always a great story, but headquarters announcements have special meaning in the variety of jobs, higher pay, and deeper civic commitment they bring," said Daniels. "And we've seen a string of new headquarters coming to the state this year - Really Cool Foods, SMC Corporation and Veolia Water just to name a few."

Tech firm to add 90 new jobs

Oct. 8, 2007- T2 Systems Inc., a leading international provider of unified parking management software, hardware and consulting services, announced that it will expand its headquarters in Indianapolis, creating more than 90 new jobs over the next seven years.

The software developer is investing more than $1 million to upgrade its offices and equipment on the city's northwest side and has begun hiring additional customer service, information technology and business development professionals.

"T2 is creating the kinds of high-tech jobs that contribute to our economic comeback," said Governor Daniels. "We're glad to see this home-grown company continuing to invest in Indiana."
